Poetry.

Two O'clock in the Morning. BY W. E. PAROS.

Miss Kitty on the sofs ont With Harvey Vane, and close at that; When lo! the clock gave warning! And Kirty suid: "Ob, deary me, It cannot be, it cannot be,

Wishout, the white moon watched the earth; Within, the red fire denced with much; The lovers' cheeks adorning With glow made crimson by the press Their lips had made, in awest carens,

At two o'clock in the morning,

Two o'clock in the morning!"

I will not tell what words were said; How Harry's heart behi ffitty's head, Parental cantion scorning. I only know a singular sound The dosy chamber walls went round, At two o'clock in the morning.

And thus it was, so 'twill be: Such scenes the pensive mo n will see, And mantle clocks give warning, To lugging youth and loving maid, Who have the parting hour delayed; Till two o'clock in the morning.
